Submitted by: Robert Hill, Director of Youth Wellness at YMCA

The YMCA of South Florida provides a healthier start for children by utilizing measurable programs through youth-wellness teams, which work to improve the health of South Florida through best-practices programs. The Y leads successful implementation of SPARK (Sports Play & Active Recreation for Kids) evidence-based, programming at youth development sites through our YFit Curriculum; and are the sole, local agency with SPARK Master Trainers certifying afterschool leaders throughout South Florida. To continue this work the Y has partnered with the Alliance for a Healthier Generation to begin Healthy Eating & Physical Activity (HEPA) implementation at their afterschool sites using the AHG 6 step framework. As the calendar year closed, the YMCA of South Florida assessed 27 afterschool sites using three separate tools on: staff knowledge, physical activity improvement, and site assessments. Through this work, which is possible due to funding from the Health Foundation of South Florida, the YMCA is helping to build healthier communities and reduce and prevent obesity in children.
