Presentation: November is National Hospice & Palliative Care Month	EIC partner and member, Maria Hidalgo, Volunteer Services Manager/Community Relations with VITAS Healthcare gave a 15-minute presentation on hospice basics and benefits for patients and families needing end of life services. The presentation included hospice criteria and eligibility, Medicare regulations, end of life care planning, and principles of palliative care. Common hospice myths and misconceptions were reviewed. Similarities and differences of palliative care and hospice were also reviewed. Reimbursement varies substantially between palliative care is based on an interdisciplinary team, with nurses, social workers, chaplains, and physicians directing, providing, and coordinating care for the patient. Additional team members include hospice aides, volunteers, therapists, and other healthcare providers. The patient and family are a part of the team and are involved in the patient care process. They provide direction to the team regarding what types of interventions and care they want, as well as those interventions that they do not want. Hospice care does not end when the patient dies. Hospice supports families after a death for up to 13 months with consistent contact, support groups, grief education and one-on-one visits. Even after that period has ended, hospice is always available to those who've experienced the death of a loved one. Maria H. encouraged attendees to consider becoming a VITAS volunteer and to help spread the word for others to do the same.
